as we see it

Congratulations are in order for Jimmy Durante, Martha Raye, Milton Berle and Jackie Gleason. The first three have been using plots in their shows to achieve a feeling of continuity between musical numbers and comedy sketches. More recently Jackie Gleason has experimented with the musical comedy form.

We believe it was Jack Carson, on the old All-Star Review, who first tried a full hour music and comedy show that told a story. Carson's writers, however, weren't quite up to the task, and none of the other comics was encouraged to try the plot technique.

Jimmy Durante apparently wandered into the format by building his shows around one guest star. Martha Raye, who started her TV career on the old Milton Berle show, went in for a musical story as soon as she landed her own program. Berle adopted the style when he went out of the custard pie business.

Many observers found Jackie Gleason's recent hour-long Honeymooner sketch, with music and dance interludes, his finest program to date.

Musical comedies are obviously more difficult to produce than variety or review-type shows. But, more often than not, the musical comedy comes over as mature, polished entertainment, if only because so much effort has gone into it. The review, lacking continuity or suspense, seldom is as satisfying for the audience.

Perhaps the day will come when all comedians of any stature will insist on fewer appearances, more preparation, and better writing. Perhaps then we would have a Musical Comedy Hour instead of a Comedy Hour.

Until then, we offer sincere congratulations to the comedians who are breaking from vaudeville tradition and designing their shows to meet television's requirements.

Why Jack Webb Wants To Give Up DRAGNET

DRAGNET is for sale. Nobody has advertised the fact, no announcement has been made, nobody has been approached on the subject. But the fact remains that Dragnet can be had for a price. Write, don't phone. Principals only. Terms.

Actually, it shouldn't be too much of a surprise that Jack Webb, who created the property five years ago and has directed and starred in both the radio and TV versions, is ready to unload. Webb is not a man to stand still. Nor is he a man to spread his talents. He likes to concentrate on one thing at a time—and he can't concentrate unless he is enthusiastic about what he is doing.

In talking with this writer out at the Walt Disney lot, Webb confessed that he is reaching the point where he's just about had it with Dragnet.

"It's been a 24-hour-a-day proposition with me for almost five years now," he said, "going back to the radio days. By the end of this month we'll have our 100th film in the can. Unless Chesterfield picks up its option and orders another 95 films, that's going to be it as far as I'm concerned."

Even if Chesterfield does pick up the option, Webb will still have a full year in which to concentrate on something new. "With 100 Dragnets in the can," he says, "we have enough to carry us through the end of the 1954-55 season."

It is Webb's conviction that an absolute maximum of 208 shows is all the viewing public can take. "That's four full years, 52 weeks a year," he says. "It's enough. TV has ten times the impact of radio, and that can only mean that people will tire of a TV show a lot faster. And if the viewer is going to get tired of it, the guys who put it on are going to start feeling the same way. Dragnet deals with crime. Well, there are just so many patterns in crime, and we've used them all."

Is The Show For Sale?

Is the show for sale, then?

"Well," Webb parries, grinning. "I wouldn't say it's for sale in the sense you'd say a house was for sale. We haven't put any signs up or called any brokers. But NBC already owns half the property and it seems only logical to me that at this point they ought to own the whole shebang."

Like a kid looking forward to Christmas, Webb already is looking forward to what has long been his pet project—a new TV film series called Pete Kelly's Blues. Back in 1950 the show went on the air as a 13-week summer radio sustainer.

Summed up, Pete Kelly's Blues revolves around a trumpet player who keeps getting into trouble. The scene is a Chicago speakeasy of the Twenties, with Webb playing Pete Kelly, a horn player with an affinity for underworld characters. The actual trumpet playing will be dubbed in by Dick Cathcart, one of the most accomplished young horn blowers in the business today.

He's Collecting Material

With his passion for authenticity, Webb already has a large collection of historical data on the Roaring Twenties. In his office on the Disney lot, tastefully furnished in Early American, is a huge scrapbook whose cover is a photo of a Dixieland jam session with the title Pete Kelly's Blues superimposed. The apostrophe in Kelly's is in the form of a small trumpet. The pages are blank. "We're going to fill it," Webb says enthusiastically, "with every scrap of material on the Twenties we can find. We want to be so imbued with the spirit of that era that we'll be able to talk the language automatically even before we shoot the pilot film."

In new role: Jack Webb tootles trumpet as the star of Pete Kelly's Blues show.

Actual shooting is tentatively scheduled for some time between January and May, depending upon the progress of still another project—a full-length feature picture of Dragnet, shot in color.

"If we do the feature," Webb says, "and I think we will, it will be the first genuine test of a TV show's box-office draw at a theater. It'll be the same Dragnet we do on television—just expanded for the larger canvas. I'll play Joe Friday, Ben Alexander will play Frank Smith and the story will come from the Los Angeles police files. It will be pure Dragnet."

Once that's out of the way, Webb and his Mark VII Productions staff will plunge into Pete Kelly's Blues with all stops out. "We'll make a pilot, sure," Webb says. "For all we know, it may turn out to be a stinker. But I don't think so. I don't see how it can miss. It'll have every ingredient a successful show needs—music, comedy, drama, suspense, sex—you name it."

If you want to buy Dragnet, this is the time to get in touch with Jack Webb. He's in a pretty good mood.

JUNGLE JON

HALL DELIGHTS SMALL FRY WITH ADVENTURE TALES

ALONG about three years ago a swashbuckling actor by name of Jon Hall got it into his head that television was the coming thing and maybe he had better do something about it. A Columbia Pictures star at the time and a sure-fire draw at the box office in such things as Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves and Arabian Nights, Hall had been turning out three pictures a year, all of them making money like a "Dragnet" in a jukebox.

When the Columbia executives got wind of Hall's pending defection, they diagnosed him instantly as being out of his mind. "Television," they told him, "is for the has-beens and the never-will-be's. Why throw over a sure thing for what's at best a wild gamble?"

As usual, the man who takes a gamble is either a hero or a dope, depending on how he makes out. Hall had spent a total of 14 years working for Sam Goldwyn, Universal-International and Columbia, and saw no particular future in this business of being a drawing card for somebody else.

"It was their box office they were talking about," he says, "not mine.

All's well, never fear, Ramar's here: the attractive young lady is Marjorie Lord.

In his element: Ramar on a jungle trail.

Me, I was just another guy on salary."

Hall, however, made no big production of bolting the movies for TV. He and producer Rudy Flothow devoted two full years to pre-production work before setting up Arrow Productions and turning a camera on the initial footage.

The immediate problem, of course, was a suitable format for Hall's talents. Cowboys had been done to death, and there were already enough space projects afoot to think seriously about starting still another. It was Hall who finally came up with the key: what single branch of the entertainment world has never laid an egg? The obvious answer was: the circus. What did the circus have that nobody else had? Wild animals. "So," said Hall, "let's do an animal show."

Blood and Bandages

The result was Ramar of the Jungle, which, as any five-year-old can tell his ignorant parents, is pronounced Rahm'-uh, not Ray-mar. Hall is cast as Dr. Tom Reynolds, known as Ramar, the white witch doctor, to the African natives. As a doctor, Hall is in a position to accomplish good deeds as well as rassle about the place with wild animals.

Hall has two fetishes about the series, which has been sold in 73 markets as this is written and is one of the Nation's top-rated shows in the younger set. He insists on both historical and geographical accuracy, and no sex. "Kids," he says, "get smarter every day. You can't fool them and we don't try to. Even our African dialects are genuine. As for sex, who needs it at their age?" Whenever a script drags a blonde into the proceedings, Hall makes sure he doesn't so much as make eyes at her.

Africa, The Locale

Laid chiefly in Africa (they've done a few with India as the locale), the show relies heavily on animal shots but rarely shoots its own. "There's a lot of footage available," Hall says, "and it's good."

In the beginning, Hall and Flothow tried using live animals from California's famed Jungle Compound but soon found it was much too risky. "Couple of the boys got pretty badly scratched up by a black panther," Hall says, "and when a mountain lion got loose on the set one day, that was that."

While not of Academy stature and budgeted at only $13,000 to $15,000 per picture (the I Love Lucy budget runs about $35,000), Ramar has caught on with remarkable speed. The show was in the black just nine months after the first episode was filmed and is now selling so fast Hall has trouble keeping up with the monthly reports.

A sideline activity also is catching on, with kids beginning to cotton to the Ramar pith helmets and other jungle accoutrements being marketed under the Arrow Productions banner. Hall is a little fearful, however, of the negative possibilities inherent in an African plaything called a bola. An authentic jungle weapon, it consists of a long leather thong with a lethal-sized rock tied to each end. Properly handled, it has a nasty way of twining itself around a man's neck and bopping him over the head at one and the same time. "We're definitely not marketing THAT one," Hall says.

Now making more money with Ramar than he ever did as a motion picture star, Hall is as enthusiastic as a young pup over the potentialities of TV. "The pictures I made will never make another dime for me," he says, "but Ramar has all the earmarks of being a gilt-edged annuity. Furthermore, I'm my own boss, working for myself."

He works, too. When Ramar is in production, the schedule calls for no less than three films per week, unheard of even in Hollywood's most frantic annals. With 39 pictures completed and another batch of 13 started in November, the immediate goal is 104. "After that," Hall says, "we'll just keep turning 'em out as long as there is a demand for them. A Los Angeles and a Philadelphia station are already paying for them on a five-a-week basis."

When not tramping about the reconstructed jungle at Eagle-Lion Studios, Hall takes to swimming, diving and hunting to keep in shape. He and his wife, singing star Frances Langford, recently celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary, something of a land-mark in a town not noted for such staid goings on.

White Witch Doctor: Hall, whose role is based on medicine, helping a native.

12,000 Letters A Week

Kate Smith's 'ear to the ground' is her eye on the mail

THAT LOVE AFFAIR between a large slice of the USA and Miss Kate Smith has been going on for so long now that the following piece of information will come as a shock to practically no one. The years, instead of having a corrosive effect on the love match, have only increased its ardor. Our evidence is Kate's fan mail, which now inundates her with some 12,000 letters a week—a rather fancy figure as mail calls go.

Kate and Ted Collins are very astute business people and this tremendous mail response does not go unheeded. The present format of the daily Kate Smith Hour is pretty much a low bow to what the postman has told Kate her fans want.

It's probable that the Smith-Collins tandem has been clicking all these years because they have always put the emphasis on wholesome entertainment, with a smattering of culture thrown in.

Most correspondence is not of the complaint variety, but naturally the complaint mail gets more consideration. Ted learned long ago that, while a mountain of favorable mail may leave sponsors cold, a single letter knocking the product or the show will have them doing nip-ups like Proctor and Gamble executives in the famous Gluyas Williams cartoon where the bar of Ivory Soap sank.

No Offense

Handling the huge volume is an expensive operation. Every piece is analyzed. If any feature of the show offends enough people, Ted will dispense with it, even though he personally may think it's great. Crank or organized mail is ignored.

Plunging necklines, almost a tired topic in TV land, have come in for a large share of abuse on the Smith show. Ted has taken precautions against further complaints by hiring a woman whose sole function is to see that no young lady appears on camera whose clothing even approaches the point of indecent exposure. If any of the girls' gowns are too low cut, a substance called meline, which comes in all colors, is inserted in the right places and complaints no longer ensue.

Ted, himself, is particularly irked by one type of letter received. The show frequently has special bargain offers whereby you send in a box-top or something similar, plus 50 cents, and receive a premium gift. He has found that as many as 20 percent of the people sending in "forget" to enclose the 50 cents, knowing that most sponsors don't dare offend a client by suggesting that he is dishonest. Over the years Ted has kept a file of the names of "forgetful" clients and has found the same names recurring with impressive frequency.

The Smiths Respond

Kate is known to be interested in worthy causes and this phase of the Smith operations is a strong mail pull. A while back she had a Korean War veteran named Smith, an amputee, on the show and asked her fans to contribute by way of the mails to giving Smith a new start in life. She asked that only people named Smith send in. By 7:30 o'clock that night, $34,000 had poured into the Smith office.

Another time, Ted was heading a drive to build a swimming pool at a veterans hospital. Some $81,000 was needed. Kate put in a pitch over the air asking that no one send in more than one dollar. Overnight, 116,000 people responded and the pool opened on schedule.

The cracker barrel interviews conducted by Ted on the show get a standard response. Ted picks guests whom he hopes might say something controversial and often has such people as U. S. Senators whose past deeds are guaranteed to bring a response. Though the mail on such programs is large, it has little effect on program planning, since the feature is calculated to stir interest.

Though Kate is on camera less than almost anyone else on the show, she still brings in the biggest mail response. Her closing number invariably evokes a pile of adulatory letters—something that has been going on since she first started coaxing that moon over that mountain. Any well-liked song is tabbed for repeats.

It is entirely possible that Kate has become as much an institution as God Bless America. At least, with all the mail that comes in every week, a letter knocking Kate herself is almost as rare as the Dodo.

LIKE THEIR nonchalant boss, Perry Como, the three Fontane Sisters are a good bet to break up on camera if something strikes them as pretty funny. That's the scheme of things on the Como show. Live it up. Be spontaneous.

Although really sisters, the Fontanes are easy to tell apart if you're not color blind. Geri, the baby of the family, has red hair; Margie is a blonde, and Bea, the oldest of the trio, is a brunette. Before the war, Margie and Bea worked with their brother, Frank, in an act called the Rosse Trio. (Rosse is the family's real name.) What was Geri doing at this time, an interviewer asked. "I was teething," she quipped as her older sisters let out a moan.

After Frank went into the Army, (he was killed at the Battle of the Bulge) the group disbanded and the girls figured on getting a male replacement for the act. That is, until Mama Rosse stepped into the picture. "What about Geri?" Mama asked. "Why not give your sister, Geri, a chance?" Mrs. Rosse, a singer and director in a church choir for 18 years, pleaded that her young redhead be tried.

So Geri corralled a pile of old Boswell Sisters records and chimed in dozens of times each day handling the alto range until she figured she was ready. Sisters Margie and Bea, still skeptical about little sister, changed the new trio's name to the Conway Sisters for a recording audition, figuring the ensuing disaster would blackball the Conways for life, but at least keep the Rosse name unblemished. But as in all success stories, the three gals were great.

Como first met the Fontanes when they did guest shots on his radio show in 1945. Then, when his singing group, the Satisfiers, left the show, Geri, Margie and Bea stepped in. The gals (Geri and Marge are married, Bea is single) are now in their sixth year with Como and some time ago turned down an offer from Arthur Godfrey to come over to his show as replacements for the Chordettes. Apparently they would rather keep on living it up with Como.

Chicago Dateline

TV's Week: Talk is rife of strife at WBKB. Insiders are spreading the word of a major shakeup of staff and talent at the station in January. Meanwhile, general manager "Red" Quinlan has branded as "premature" the idea of a Television City for ABC here in Chicago. But it is admitted that WBKB, now housed in the Civic Opera Bldg., has the new Greyhound Bus Depot in mind as a site for studio facilities.

North

New York has "Mr. Muggs;" now Chicago has "Geronimo." The latter is a real live monkey hired recently by his majesty, Garfield Goose. Garfield, the WBBM-TV gander who claims to be a king, uses the monk as butler and court jester.

The Chordettes, the femme quartet that harmonized—for a while anyway—with Arthur Godfrey, will sing Sat., Dec. 12 at a SPEBSQSA concert at the Civic Opera Theater. SPEBSQSA is, of course, the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

TV or Not TV, an amusing book of cartoons by Arv Miller, is attracting attention locally. Arv starred on WGN-TV's old Cartune-O show.

Bet WBBM-TV programmers are hoping the title of their new Sunday AM Bible quiz proves prophetic as far as ratings are concerned. It's being called This Way Up. Mal Galliart, a staff announcer, was a last-minute substitution for Lee Phillip as show moderator.

What-Became-Of Dept.: Luckey North, Chicago TV's pioneer pitchgirl, sends tidings from California of the birth of her first baby, a redhaired blue-eyed girl. Luckey (now Mrs. Bill Binder) has christened the tyke "Penny."

The New Show: Don (Mr. Wizard) Herbert's appearance on NBC-TV's Today is now slated for this Friday, Dec. 11. It was postponed a week.

I Led Three Lives, the adventures of an FBI undercover agent, tees off on WGN-TV Tues., Dec. 15 at 9:30 PM.

Advance Tips on Shows: Nicky Francis and Bobo, the woolly dog, take over Laughtime on WBKB from beauteous Angel Casey on Dec. 28. Angel will launch a new totfest, as yet untitled, that same day on Channel 7 at 9:30 AM. Nicky and Bobo were dislodged from their noon-hour niche last week. Happy Pirates scuttled them by going to a full 55 minutes.

Music in lieu of menus will be offered by Beulah Karney, Channel 7's high priestess of cookery, on Christmas Day. A musicale boasting a chorus of 40 Tyrolean singers will render carols. It's all a climax to Beulah's current campaign to spotlight Yuletide customs and cuisines of national groups.

Karney

Shows in the Works: Eddy Arnold was in Chicago last week to confer with NBC brass about a network TV show to originate again from Our Town, if sponsors will fall in line—and some are interested.

WNBQ is also blueprinting another video venture for Bill Bailey, late of the Old American Barn Dance. It would be a Saturday morning session for youngsters. Bill's new MGM album of records, by the way, is set for release.

Bob's Bobby-Soxer

O'Brien

Did Joan O'Brien, the teen-age songstress on the Bob Crosby Show, appear on TV this summer with Hoagy Carmichael? I believe this show was the Saturday Night Revue from New York. I think she's wonderful.—Mrs. Ben Kasmer, Hammond, Ind. (No. Joan, according to spokesmen for the Bob Crosby Show, is a local L. A. youngster, 17, who was discovered only this year. She's a newcomer to network television.—Ed.)

Put Horse Operas to Pasture?

Why is it that every Saturday and Sunday when you turn on your TV set you see a western movie? When you have seen one, you have seen them all. These movies ought to be banished from television, especially the ones that star Bob Steele. For a replacement, I'd suggest Bil Baird's puppets.—Very Disgusted, De Kalb, Ill. (Westerns are heavy on week-ends because that's when the kids are home.—Ed.)

Is British TV Superior?

Criticism has been made in your magazine of British TV, which limits advertising and the sponsor's part in putting on programs. I should like to point out that under the British system, provision is made for the tastes of cultural "minorities," and this is not always the case when the entertainment is provided by commercial interests as in our own country. In general, only very large concerns such as Firestone, U. S. Steel, Ford, etc., can afford the luxury of sponsoring shows which appeal to a limited group. Others have to play it safe to "sell goods" and must stick to a "popular" formula.—Evelyn Sagat, Kenosha, Wis.

Age vs. Youth

Hats off to Arthur Godfrey and every member of his show! I disagree with the "Teen-Agers of Leland, Ill.", who wrote in saying that Frank Parker was one of the worst singers. Up here we think he's great, and we're from Milwaukee and we ought to know! More credit should be given to Godfrey and less to La Rosa, who's getting uncalled-for publicity.—A Young Great-Grandma, Milwaukee, Wis.

Mystery Misses

We enjoy Herb Shriner's Two for the Money on Saturday nights, but we've been wondering what girls take the part of the dancing cigarette packs.—Catherine O'Connor, South Bend, Ind. (Identity of the girls is a closely-guarded secret, but back in 1951, one of the girls was a dancer named Floria Vestoff. The king-sized lass was hired later.—Ed.)

Carries Weight With Fans

Baker

I flunked when Movie Quick Quiz called me last month, but I got a $100 worth of thrills just talking to emcee Two-Ton Baker. He should have more sponsors. With his two tons of personality, he surely has all the ladies sold. And I think he has the only good kid show on TV. I'm speaking of Happy Pirates.—Mrs. L. Wardo, Chicago.

Ed's a N. Y. Native

Was Ed Sullivan of Toast of the Town a news reporter on radio in Cincinnati some 10 years ago? The station, I think, was WLW.—Mrs. I. B. Allen, Oak Park, Ill. (For decades Sullivan has lived and worked in N. Y. However, he did have a network radio show in the '30s and '40s.—Ed.)

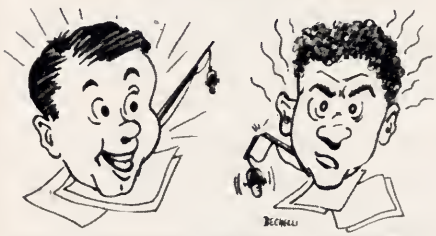
Norm meets a beauty: Carol Segermark.

Rhubarbs Aren't His Dish

WARY NORM BARRY



IT IS inevitable in reporting on WNBQ's Norm Barry, to compare him with his predecessor, Tom Duggan. A gap the size of Grand Canyon separates this pair of sportscasters. Where Duggan has always been aggressively outspoken, Barry is a peace-loving guy, wary of controversy.

Yet Norm has managed, by and large, to hold the sizeable audience of sports fans he inherited last May and to cultivate followers of his own. On the basis of looks alone, handsome Norman has snared feminine fans, and he likely hasn't alienated many male viewers with his plain and sane approach to sports.

If the above summary stamps Norm as a colorless figure, it's misleading. A look at his career will attest to that.

St. Louis was his birthplace in 1909, but the sturdy Irish youth grew up in Columbus, O. He came to Chicago in 1930. In other cities he had tried his hand at sundry trades, working at everything from soda jerk to paperhanger. One job, that of elevator operator in a furniture store, lasted only three days. Norm, weary of the ups-and-downs, deserted his elevator for a nap on a sample bed. "The boss," Norm recalls, "had to walk up four floors to find me. It took him five minutes to get the breath to fire me."

Fired and Re-hired

In Chicago young Barry bluffed his way into an announcer's berth on Station WIBO, now defunct. Within a week he had been both fired and re-hired. "I learned," Norm says, "to bellow into those old mikes instead of whispering."

It was an exciting era in broadcasting, and as radio grew, Norm grew with it. Interview shows with celebrities were his specialty, and on one memorable night, comics Fred Allen and the late Joe Penner were his guests. Both were making their bow on the air. "Radio," Fred said sourly, "is not for me."

"What about me?" retorted Penner. "All I've got in my act is a duck!"

Norm left radio in 1932 to barnstorm in vaudeville as an emcee and singer, using a voice he describes as a "rank imitation of Crosby's." In 1934, he joined WMAQ's staff and went to become a far-roving newsman for NBC.

After wartime service as a naval officer, Barry settled down to sedate duties at WMAQ, doing mostly newscasts. When the postwar phenomenon of TV hit, Norm was ready. In the 30's he had pioneered in the medium on old W9XAO, a local experimental unit.

Typed as "Trouble-shooter"

From 1947 to 1953, Norm, as commercial announcer, hawked wares on a number of Channel 5 shows. He was also often called upon to sub for such stars as Walt Durbahn and John Ott when vacations rolled 'round. This typecasting as a "trouble-shooter" moved WNBQ to draft him in an hour of need.

Norm claims complete satisfaction with his present quota of radio and TV chores. Any excess energies he may have are dissipated at golf. An avid amateur, he consistently scores in the 80's and this year won the TV GUIDE Tourney award for sportscasters.

Norm Barry can be seen Sun. through Fri. on WNBQ (Channel 5) at 10:30 PM.

SPORTSCAST

by ED PAZDUR

"Howard Miller insipid—Jack Eigen nauseous"—Says Tom Duggan . . .

For all practical purposes, according to Duggan's ARB rating, his sole audience might only be WBKB's studio camera crew.

The smiling Irishman's wrath did not cease with the ARB. The plucky sportscaster renewed his assault on Jim Norris and the International Boxing Club. He begged the IBC to sue him for libel and accused Jim Norris of being an associate of gangsters.

"I have been unfairly labeled an irresponsible sportscaster," protested Duggan. "I am not a sportscaster," he continued. "I am a sports critic with a civic obligation to call the shots as I see them.

"If Jack Eigen, a nauseous lightweight, can out-show me with a better rating," said Tom, "then I'll join my Dad's plumbing shop!" About WNBQ's suave Howard Miller who opposes Duggan on Channel 5, Friday nights, Duggan sullenly exploded: "As for Miller's show—I think it's insipid!"

The cause of Duggan's grumpiness was the following ARB rating for his WBKB 11:10 PM to 12:00 midnight show:

Tuesdays...1.4 to 0.9	Thursdays...2.3 to 0.9
Wednesdays...0.9	Fridays...0.9

Duggan's average for the week comes to a paltry 1.0... If all the sets in the Chicago area were tuned to his show, his rating would be 100.0... A perfect rating is, of course, impossible. But for comparison, take one of Chicago's top rated local shows—Jim Moran's popular Courtesy Hour, seen every Friday night over WBKB. Moran pulls an impressive 17.6 rating.

Jack Eigen attracts a reasonable 2.8, Monday nights over WBKB. Howard Miller, who competes with Duggan for a Friday night audience, pulls an 8.8 compared to Duggan's 0.9, according to ARB. Now network execs are closely eyeing Miller as a potential network star.

But in all fairness to Duggan, one must point out that a competitive rating service has been kinder to him. According to Pulse Ratings, Duggan's weekly average is not 1.0, but closer to a 4.5 tally for the week... Obviously, someone must be wrong.

To prove the Pulse ratings are more in line with his show, Duggan has literally pleaded for mail... We, too, would like to know if you listen to Duggan. If you listen, or if you stopped, drop us a line. Your comments will be passed on to where they will do the most good.

5 4 BOXING—New York
Orlando Zulueta vs. Wallace "Bud" Smith, 10 rounds, lightweights.

JIMMY POWERS' RATINGS:

	Rated	W	L	D	KO's
Zulueta	2	46	18	9	6
Smith	3	26	8	5	15

This is a rubber match. Zulueta won a decision in March while Smith evened the score in May. These youngsters can box very well, their biggest assets being their rapid left jabs. Smith has come along fast in the past months, scoring five straight knockouts over fairly good heavier opponents, although just tipping the lightweight mark himself. He has a good right to the body which should take some steam out of the high stepping Cuban. Orlando is an in and outer. He sometimes looks like a champion, the next outing, like a chump. I pick Smith. He has more power in his slams than Zulueta.

7 DANGEROUS ASSIGNMENT

7 BOXING—From Boston
Tony De Marco vs. Teddy "Redtop" Davis, 10 rounds, lightweights.

JIMMY POWERS' RATING

	Rated	W	L	D	KO's
DeMarco	N	30	2	0	19
Davis	2	53	46	2	18

This is an odd match. Davis who ranks as a top featherweight is giving away plenty of weight to his local opponent. Davis can give away weight as he has shown many times in the past, but giving it away to a strong youngster like Boston's De Marco is another question. He knows all the tricks of the trade. In this bout, Davis must get off early if he expects to do wonders. This corner picks De Marco.

Milwaukee Dateline

TV's Week: UHF, the younger brother in the electronics field, seems to have come of age as far as viewers are concerned. A recent ARB (American Research Bureau) survey disclosed that families owning TV sets equipped for Ultra High Frequency spend 25% more time viewing than families having only Very High Frequency receivers. Milwaukee, where both UHF and VHF stations are in operation, was one of six cities where the ARB sampling was made.

McCarthy

Speaking of maturity, WTMJ-TV has just attained the ripe (for television) age of six. It was back in December of 1947 that Channel 4 went on the air.

WCAN-TV's Dean McCarthy has returned from his honeymoon to his hectic toil as program director for the station. McCarthy is familiar to Channel 25 followers as sportscaster Hal Walker's substitute this fall.

And expanding the staff, the station has also re-imported announcer Cal Ross from New York. Ross, who was engaged briefly by Channel 25 this fall, did broadcasts in Gotham of top sporting matches over station WMGM. Although hired on a permanent basis, Cal will serve WCAN-TV only on special assignments for the time being.

Advance Tips on Shows: Over 1,000 youngsters will be feted by WTMJ-TV's Foreman Tom at his three annual Christmas parties to be held and televised December 21-22-23.

Also alert the young'uns for a special one-hour telecast via Channel 25 of the Big Top show come 2 PM Christmas Day. Underprivileged kids in Philadelphia, guests of TV GUIDE, will see the spectacle first-hand. The show will supplement the regular week-end circus program WCAN-TV sends out Saturdays at 11 AM.

Wagner	12	31	14	4	18

This is a rematch. Patterson boxed Wagner on April 13th in his 6th professional bout. Quite an assignment for a youngster who because of his natural ability must by-pass the prelim boys to face the more experienced ringman. The contest was a close one, the 1952 Olympic champion just gaining a split decision verdict in 8 rounds, the distance only allowed because of Patterson's age. Patterson should repeat here, but he will have to go all out to gain this second victory over the tough, rugged Wagner, just as in their first encounter. Dick can take a punch well, and come back swinging with plenty in his mitts.

Commercial spieler BOB WARREN has been on a N.Y.-to-Hollywood merry-go-round these past three weeks trying to keep up with announcing chores on This Is Your Life, The Red Skelton Show and Peter Potter's Juke Box Jury . . . The Seven Ravens, 52-minute all-puppet version of the Grimm fairy tale, being released to TV in time for the Christmas season.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD on the subject of her cancelled This Is Your Life appearance: "I never go out. They never could have gotten me to that theater without my finding out what it was all about. Anyway, my life is hardly fit subject matter for television" . . . DANNY THOMAS: "I dropped a 50-cent piece at the Mocambo. And before I could pick it up they'd thrown a table cloth over it and seated a party of four. And then the party left it as a tip."

LUX VIDEO THEATER may move to Saturday nights on another network when it expands to a full-hour program after the first of the year . . . ABC is seeking a new title for its upcoming JOEL GREY program, since it was unable to obtain necessary clearances for "Joey," the tag it had selected.

Joseph Schildkraut

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

AS ITS contribution to TV's new and expanded drama season, the Du Mont network is presenting a group of plays Wednesday evenings headed by the distinguished actor, Joseph Schildkraut. To date, it has been a rather undistinguished series. From all indications, the producers were so overcome with Schildkraut's fame and their new studio that they completely forgot the story. The show, titled simply Joseph Schildkraut, suffers from weak scripts.

Schildkraut, with an eminent background both on the stage and in movies, hosts the program each week and is also to star in seven of each 13 plays presented. His accomplished acting has made several of them entertaining. But even his ability cannot overcome the boring script. Whether it's a problem of budgetary restrictions or incompetent story selection, the show has relied too heavily on so-so writing.

The producers must be credited with trying something new occasionally. The initial show, for example, represented a telling effort to establish a mood without benefit of action. But it didn't quite come off. Another time, Schildkraut attempted a farce comedy. This one had some imaginative touches.

Schildkraut, an affable host, has had some fine supporting talent, including Sylvia Sidney and Lili Darvas. The plays encompass everything from farce to tragedy and include both originals and adaptations.

The new Du Mont studio from which the show emanates was especially designed for TV and is probably larger than any network studio in the East. The producers take full advantage of its size and technical facilities.

CIRCLE THEATER

Nina Foch: top talent for a top show.

COMPETITION, the mainstay of America's free enterprise system, has certainly benefited Circle Theater (NBC). One of the veteran half-hour dramatic series on TV, the show until this year made it a point to deal only in sweetness and light. Now, with the new U.S. Steel Hour being telecast directly opposite, the producers have injected some—pardon the expression—guts into the show. The result is a vast improvement.

The switch in subject matter was certainly abrupt. After the romance and tender-heartedness of previous Circle Theaters, viewers must have received quite a jolt when they tuned in for the first time this season. The story treated marital infidelity and its effect on the sensitive young son of the erring parents. The writers dealt warmly and humanly with a difficult theme.

The series since then has maintained that quality level. As with most of TV's half-hour dramas, Circle Theater features different casts in different stories each week. Endowed with an ample budget, producer Hudson Faussett has hired some of the best Broadway and TV actors, such as Nina Foch, Madge Evans, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Ona Munson.

The series also boasts some of the best production mountings on TV, as well as consistently good staging and camera direction. With Suspense still enjoying its devotees, that Tuesday-night-at-9:30-period could become as hotly contested as any on TV.

FINE TUNING

By OLLIE CRAWFORD

ATOM BOMBS being shown on television. These are TV's deadliest guest stars, against pretty tough competition.

They call them the Thin Man and the Fat Man, but nobody mistakes them for Laurel and Hardy.

Being on the same stage with two atom bombs is about as comfortable as trying to ad lib with Tallulah Bankhead and Milton Berle. It was all right to have the bombs there, as long as they didn't blow up in their lines. This show had a chance to reach California without the cable.

This was the first show where they relayed signals from director to floor manager to bombardier.

It's sort of like doing Groucho Marx' You Bet Your Life show with real lives. They could do this show on Studio One, and everybody would head for Studio 1,000,002. Everybody was waiting for the commercial announcer to say: "Run right out to your neighborhood air raid shelter."

The director had only one order for the A-bombs: "Don't do something, just stand there."

The Queen: 8,000,000 words.

QUEEN of the Soap Opera

Elaine Carrington Says Her Audience Is Young, Female and College-Educated

THE Queen of the Soap Opera is a jaunty, gray-haired lady named Elaine Sterne Carrington, who earned that title by fashioning about eight million soapchip-selling words for radio serials during the last couple of decades. (Eight million words, our statistical department tells us, is equivalent to 100 average novels).

As the most prolific of writers of these washboard weepers (Pepper Young's Family, When a Girl Marries, and Rosemary), Mrs. Carrington has done a workmanlike job of taking some average American households and untidying them a bit with a series of crises.

Now the grand lady of the much-maligned soaper has invaded TV with a morning serial called Follow Your Heart, which is shaping up as a pretty heart-rending, poor boy-rich girl affair that's already got its full quota of grief. "You can't keep a taut ship in this business," says Mrs. Carrington. "You gotta have something dreadful hopping all the time."

If there is one person hopping all the time, it's Mrs. Carrington. A widow and mother of two grown children (Patricia, 27 and Robert, 22), she somehow divides her time turning out crises for her four current soapers; dabbling in photography; maintaining a Manhattan penthouse and a Long Island country home; writing short stories for "slick" mags, full length stage plays, and TV dramas. When she is far enough ahead of her scripts she's apt to take off for Europe to visit her married daughter who lives in Paris. The Queen has a stock reply when friends ask her where she gets the energy. "I don't know, dear," she says with a disarming brand of humor, "it must be a slipping gland."

No one in the business is more aware of what might be called the soap opera stigma. "Being termed Queen of the Soap Opera," says Her Majesty, "is like being elected Miss Spun Aluminum Fishbucket of 1953. 'Soap Opera' has a perfectly dreadful connotation for most people—especially the critics. But I rather like it. It has a kind of homey, down-to-earth sound and listeners have completely latched on to the phrase."

Mrs. Carrington is proud of her profession, though she has no illusions that soap opera is high art. "But," she adds, "soap operas needn't hang their heads. They have a definite place and they frequently contain profound wisdom. For instance, we dramatized the care that wounded soldiers got overseas. This relieved many women who were wrecks wondering about their boys. Once we had a sequence giving advice to pregnant women who feared having their first baby. There were thousands of requests for reprints of this script and just as many letters expressing their thanks for this type of soap opera counsel.

"Also it's bosh to believe that our audience is made up of neurotic women seeking an 'out' in life. Our greatest response is from young college-educated women, fine American housewives who don't come down with emotional traumas every week."

The eight million words spawned by Elaine Carrington are the most respected in a field where most TV and radio potshots find their mark. Critics, who have a field day roasting radio's soapers, usually reserve a few kinder words for Pepper Young's Family or When A Girl Marries.

A problem, what else? Nancy Sheridan advises Julia, played by Sallie Brophy.

As a child—before she could scrawl her name on a blackboard—Elaine Sterne would recite weird and imaginative stories to her family. At 12, she penned an exotic tale called For Love's Sake, followed by a bombardment of stories which were signed "Elaine Sterne, G.A." (She kept the riddle of the initials secret for a time, then confessed they meant "Great Author."

Inspiration At Home

Elaine sold her first story at 18, then began winning writing contests regularly. In the early days of radio she stopped in at NBC one day with some scenarios revolving around a mother raising two young children. The network liked the idea of the serial—called "Red Davis"—and put it on the air with a young actor named Burgess Meredith playing a lead part. "Red Davis" soon became Pepper Young's Family.

"Pepper," the writer confesses, "is really the story of my family."

Even Mrs. Carrington is amazed at the way some of her listeners "lose" themselves in belief of her fiction. "During one broadcast of Pepper," she relates, "I had cleared up one messy situation and then arranged for Mrs. Young to develop a severe pain in her side. (That was my cliff-hanger for the day). Well, right after the show a frantic woman called and asked for Mrs. Young. She blurted out, 'Oh, Mrs. Young, I just know it's an appendicitis. You should have it out immediately.'"

Mrs. Carrington, a warm, alive person who is as modern and as up-to-date as the zipper, is the favorite gal of the actors and actresses who have played in her soap-sponsored brain children. The Carrington alumni, which include "Buzz" Meredith and Martha Scott, get together at least once a year in her penthouse apartment to laugh over old times.

Always Complications

Follow Your Heart's theme, while tidier than many soapers' plots, nevertheless has its snags to happiness. Society heroine Julia Fielding, a deb with a heart as soft as mutton, tries her darndest to convince her 24-carat crowd that it's possible for a rich girl like herself to marry into the world of Peter Davis. Now Peter is an Adonis in the looks department, but financially he's definitely out at the elbows as far as the Fieldings are concerned. Julia cares not a jitney. Both sides of the railroad tracks are acceptable to her. Besides, Peter is a G-Man, a fearless, close-mouthed FBI agent who is working on some hot cases—so hot he dasn't tell a breathing soul of his operations.

Mrs. Carrington, who sketches her soap opera plots about a year in advance, is a little cagey about when and if Julia and Pete will eventually tie the knot. The road toward an occasion like that in the unhurried sphere of soapers is long and bumpy. But for those apprehensive viewers who are a little upset at the way beauteous redhead Georgie McDonald is unloading her charm at the feet of G-Man Peter, we have definite reassurance from the Queen of the Soap Opera: The Redhead hasn't got a chance.

And here Julia sits in a brown study, worrying whether she'll get her G-Man.

Last Minute Gifts

FOR LAST-MINUTE Christmas shopping, Pat Benoit, who plays Mr. Peepers' girl friend, has found a variety of gifts sure to be welcome under any tree. If you haven't completed your list, or if you're stumped for an idea, Pat has suggestions to fit every purse and taste.

For a special girl, an extra-special oversized red leather handbag, large enough to hold all the paraphernalia she could need in a day, plus all the accessories she would wear on an after-working-hours date. By Ronay. About $15 plus tax.

For a bachelor friend, or for anybody who ever plays host or hostess—a cocktail set by Terry Designs, Inc. Gold snowflakes are scattered over the alcohol-resistant black tray. Six large glasses pick up the motif. Packaged with a 42-ounce glass pitcher and stirrer, it can be had for about $10.

Pretty leather covers, in decorator colors, to hold your TV GUIDES. The magazine slips into elasticized bands. By Barbros, Ltd. and about $7.

A long-handled umbrella, as nice to keep as to give. Of acetate rayon with a matching case, it comes in assorted colors, has an imported Italian handle. By L. P. Henryson, about $10.

For the man who's hard to please—a Lee hat gift certificate, packaged in a gilt Christmas box with a miniature hat. Available at haberdashery and department stores, from $5 to $15.

Silver and gold finish cuff links in Museum Reproductions designs. Manufactured by Swank for men, these large-sized decorative links are being bought by women to wear with tailored shirts. Packaged in tiny suede bags at $3.50 a pair.

A gift to delight a woman—International Sterling's newest pattern, Silver Rhythm. Designed with the place setting in mind, those pieces on either side of the plate flow towards each other to achieve a balanced effect. About $35 a place-setting.

. . . AND DOUG EDWARDS

He Treats It With Speed, Accuracy And Respect

FOR MORE THAN five years Douglas Edwards, a sandy-haired, sober-faced commentator with a smooth delivery, has been a major source of news information for a large segment of TV viewers.

When he announced the names of 14 POWs just freed from Korea, for example, he got word from four grateful families that they heard the glad tidings first on his show.

A former radio news announcer and editor, foreign correspondent and CBS reporter, Edwards at 36 constitutes one half of TV's two-fisted punch in the field of straight reporting—the other thrust coming from NBC's John Cameron Swayze.

Like Swayze, Edwards is sold on straight reporting. Seldom, if ever, does he impose a conclusion or interpret the news. "If you do a sufficiently good job of reporting," says Doug, "you don't need to analyze."

The "CBS Television News Room," where Douglas Edwards With the News emanates, is located just off Park Avenue in Manhattan's rickety Liederkranz Hall. The news room itself is actually a two-sided scenery piece that looks like wood paneling, and is equipped with a simple desk and chair. There's no drama of the Front Page. No chatter of teletype machines. No copy boys rushing hot flashes just off the wire.

At times, however, last-minute stuff throws Edwards' staff into a mild panic. Doug will accept eleventh-hour film clips even though his show has been virtually set. "Once," he recalls," we showed film received five minutes after we got on the air. It was something hot and Alice (assistant scripter Alice Weel) rushed down Park Avenue on a motorcycle, skirts flying, to get the darn thing here.

Topsy-Turvy

"Of course, occasionally everything goes goofy. Like the time a baseball film clip—I think it was one of Ted Williams hitting a home run—ran upside down and backwards. I just looked at the camera and said, 'Well, that's the way the film looks upside down and backward.' What else could I say?"

The most memorable of the comparatively rare snafus was what the CBS men call The Ol' Debbil Green Incident. "I was running over the list of Republican Convention keynoters," says Doug, "and came to the name of Dwight Green, then Governor of Illinois. As I announced that Green's picture would be on the screen in a few seconds, a sinister looking devil was flashed on. The devil was meant for the commercial. Our sponsor was plugging an Album of Faust."

Show Vast In Scope

The Edwards news crew is small in comparison to the vast scope of the show. Backbone of the operation is the crew of 250 cameramen who are on call all over the world. A Kansas flood, an outbreak in Iran, a World Series or an attempted suicide are all potential camera bait for the network's lensmen. Editing of the film is in the hands of Edwards, co-producer Don Hewitt and the cut-'em-and-splice-'em team of Bill Kling and Tommy Phillips. Altogether, some 85 man hours go into the quarter hour news digest each night.

A conscientious reporter, Edwards has one pretty solidly ingrained prejudice: sensationalism. His TV newspaper avoids playing up tidbits of scandal, divorce or ledge jumpers.

Although the "Dean of TV Newsmen" (a title few could dispute) has no pretensions of "educating" viewers, he remains one of the main cogs in the big television news machine that is doing a heck of a job convincing most TV cynics that the medium is not all gags and giveaways.
